American Factories Lag in Adopting A.I. This Drugmaker Is an Exception

A Bristol Myers Squibb plant that makes cancer drugs was the only manufacturer in the U.S. recognized for innovation by the World Economic Forum this year. Every year the World Economic Forum and McKinsey recognize manufacturers that are on the cutting edge of technology, including artificial intelligence. This year, the Bristol Myers Squibb facility in Devens, Mass., was the only manufacturer in the United States that made the list of 23. The Bristol Myers Squibb facility in Devens is being recognized for its advanced adoption of artificial intelligence in drug manufacturing, distinguishing it from many other U.S. factories
